

Most of this arrangement and plant selection is good especially with the close proximity to open space. However, vines growing directly on the structure would likely be enough to destroy this home. Remember that Zone A is the most important area of defensible space and should be the leanest in density and arrangement along with selecting plants that are higher in moisture content. Ideally irrigated.